When Should I Use Cold vs. Moist Heat Therapy?

Cold therapy is for injuries and acute pain.

Ice calms down inflamed, hot and swollen tissue and reduces the pain of inflammation.

Heat therapy is for muscles, chronic pain and stress.

Heat comfortably reduces the pain of muscle spasms and cramps and soothes the nervous system and the mind. Stress can be a major factor in some chronic pain.

Caution: Do not use heat therapy on an injury that is already warm to the touch.

ALTERNATING COLD AND HEAT

Some experts like the Mayo Clinic recommend alternating hot and cold therapy for effective pain relief from overuse injuries and chronic joint pain.

MOIST HEAT VS. DRY HEAT

For most people, moist heat provides better pain relief than dry because it penetrates deeper to relax tight muscles and increase circulation to the area through vasodilatation.

Please note: Consult your doctor before starting any type of therapy. Always follow your healthcare professional's recommendations.
